Our Society feels very honored that the North Carolina Genealogical Society used one of our articles in their paper. The article was "Plank Roads of N.C." which was submitted by Sylvia Whitford. Personally, I like Sylvia's work and you will be reading more articles in future newsletters as well as this issue.

The Genealogical Workshop was held at the Masonic Temple in Washington, N. (. in July. The speakers were outstanding and were: Rev. Nelson A. L. Weller, Helen F. M. Leary, C. G., and Jane Smith Hill. Washington County, North Carolina Land Grants

There are over 184 grants filed under Washington County in the Land Grant Office of the Secretary of State in Raleigh. Many tracts in present-day Washington (ounty were granted prior to its formation in 1799 from Tyrrell (ounty. These earlier grants appear among the 1580 filed under Tyrrell (ourty.

I have listed the Washington (ourty grants with the information that appears on the shucks with two exceptions. Under the listing entitled "location" the description often reads "beginning at a pine" or "on the South side of the Albemarle Sound". I have changed this to list family names, creeks, swamps, etc. that appear in the survey. The names of chain carriers does not appear on the shuck, and since they are important to researchers, I have consulted the surveys and listed them .

the most part I have spelled names as th	=

Saving The Potatoes by Sylvia Whitlord

During the (ivil War all the able bodied men had gone to fight, and the women and children were left at home to do the best they could. Food was scarce and the farm was beginning to suffer, with no men to plow the fields.

My great-great-grandmother had planted a big garden, and with the help of the children had harvested a good crop of Irish potatoes. The war was not going well for the South. Word trickled down that the northern army was only four or five days away.

Great-great-grandmother began to worry about the freshly dug potatoes. Any marching army needs food, and she knew those potatoes were in jeopardy. She also knew without them her family would be hungry, come winter. She was determined to safe-guard them well.

It took a full morning for her and the children to hide them. She prayed her hide-away would withstand the scrutiny of a bunch of hungry soldiers.

Sure enough , when the men in blue came down the road they were stopping at every farm , searching for food .

My great-grandfather was just a boy at the time. He was playing in the front yard when the Yankees were sighted coming down the road. The soldiers stopped to talk to the boy. He was fascinated by the uniforms. One young trooper stooped to the boy's level and asked, friendly like, "where's your ma got the spuds hid, boy?"

The soldiers were wise to ask such a young boy, it's a well known fact young children can not keep a secret. He looked at the soldier with a blank face and replied, truthfully, ""e ain't got no spuds, mister."

The soldiers did not even bother to search, knowing such a young tike could not lie. That they didn't know was the boy never heard potatoes called spuds.

And that is the tale, handed down in my family, about how my great-grandfather saved the potatoes from the Yankees.

Elder Henry Robason son of Henry Robason and Sally his wife was Borned at Buncumb Hall, Washington (ounty, N.C. January 3rd 1785 and departed this life February: 25th 1872. azed 87 years (illezible) months and 22 days. Funeral was Presched by Elder Stanly Ayers from the 5-6-7 & 8th verses of 4th (hapt of Timothy. May my last end be like His which was Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord &c 14th (hapter of Revelations. Written by P(?). A(?). Robason his youngest child.

(Book also contains births of five children of Thomas H. Roebuck and his wife Sally Ann from 1840-1848.)

Helping out the neighbors

Vernon Everette made the trip to Washington County from Ivor, Virginia to do a little maintainance on a family cemetary. He then decided to do the same at his grandparent's gravesite at Rehoboth Church. Rather than hit just one spot in the yard of the 140-year-old building, Vernon gave the neighbors a helping hand. Originally an Anglican congregation in colonial times, the tiny chuch between Roper and Creswell is now United Methodist.

Bottom Photo: G.J. Cherry Cemetery

Vernon Everett, In and his wife to attend our last meeting. They are from Ivon, Virginia. Thank you so much for sharing your family information with us.

The bottom photo is the family cemetery mentioned in top photo. Gisbourne J. Cherry Cemetery is located on private land off of the main highway. It is two miles west of the junction of 32 and 64 going toward Roper, N.C. The driveway is on the right past Holly Neck Road. There is a locked gate on this land now owned by Raymond Spruill. This cemetery is also known as the Noah White Cemetery and Sallie Cherry Davenport Cemetery. There is an ornamental iron fence with the name G.J. Cherry on the gate.

John Freeman owned this land before Noah White. John Freeman is not any of the family but is buried outside the fence (1841).

This cemetery record will be put in our library with others that have been completed. (herry, Davenport, White, Tarkington, Vernon, Wynne, Starr, and Aumack ancestors are included in this record (burials & removals).

Alot of love, time, and hard work was put into this. Thanks again, Vernon for sharing it with us.
